

MEETING HELD
AT NEW HAVENPresident Taft and Colonel
Roosevelt Confer.

NEW YORK STATE SITUATION

Cause of Some Concern to the Former President and His Political Advisers—Roosevelt Seeks and Obtains Further Evidence of the Moral Support of the Chief Executive.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 20.—President Taft and Colonel Theodore Roosevelt met at New Haven, Conn., for the second time since the former president's return from Africa. It was plain from all that transpired before and after the meeting that the colonel and his close political advisers are not a little worried over the situation in New York state and went to the president for further evidence of his moral support.

This the president was glad to give. He declared his position in the New York state fight had been clear from the very first. He said he sympathized heartily with the fight against "bossism" being waged by the people of the state. Mr. Taft reiterated the statements he made in his letter to Lloyd C. Griscom, president of the New York county Republican committee, at the time of the Sherman-Roosevelt controversy over the temporary chairmanship. This letter, he added, stated his position fully and accurately and he was standing on it absolutely.

Mr. Taft announced to his callers anew what he had said in the Griscom letter—that he favored direct primaries for the nomination of congressmen and state legislators. He understands this to be the purport of the Cobb bill as amended by the Seth Low and Joseph Choate memorial. He said he hoped that a declaration for such a primary law would be written into the Republican state platform, and that a candidate for governor in sympathy with this movement would be nominated.

Both Agree With Taft.

President Taft is not ready as yet to admit the advisability of doing away with conventions for the nomination of state officers from governor down. Mr. Taft understands that both Governor Hughes and Colonel Roosevelt are now practically in accord with his own position, although the governor fought at first for direct primaries for all offices.

President Taft and Colonel Roosevelt did not discuss the question of the presidency in 1912. The president has not been advised as to what Mr. Roosevelt's attitude is toward that campaign.

It can be stated that the meeting at New Haven, while it may have been successful in its "scenic effect," and of moral advantage to the Roosevelt leaders in New York state, was absolutely barren of results as to any better understanding between the president and Colonel Roosevelt as to national issues or their personal relations in view of many recent events.

Something of the nature of a truce seems to have been arranged regarding the New York state situation. After that is over events will shape themselves. Colonel Roosevelt himself is said to have let drop the hint that, as to his side of the matter, "something would be doing" after the elections. Mr. Taft is letting 1912 look out for itself. He declares he has other matters of concern at the moment.

It came out at the conference that the Taft administration is to be endorsed at Saratoga. No mention of Mr. Taft as a candidate in 1912 will be made.

Depreciated Action in Ohio.

In this connection it became known that President Taft deprecated the action of the Ohio Republicans in declaring for him in 1912. He did not think he should be made an issue. The Ohio leaders were anxious, however, that the Taft administration and the legislative record should be made a part of the state campaign and took this means of bringing it about.

The New Haven conference, it is believed, was a source of much gratification to Mr. Taft and his friends. That his aid should be sought at this time and in the manner that it was, following a somewhat recent attitude of an almost complete ignoring of his administration or existence, probably gave the president considerable satisfaction.

The conference had its inception on Saturday last, though it had been kept a close secret until within a short time of Colonel Roosevelt's arrival in New Haven.

Mr. Bannard, who accompanied the president to Albany, explained that he and Mr. Griscom thought it would be a good thing to get the president and Mr. Roosevelt together again "to smooth over any apparent differences between them."

This applied, however, only to the New York state situation. As to the fight in 1912 there is a disposition on the part of the leaders to cross that bridge when they come to it and to steer a long way off in the meantime. Mr. Bannard said that he did not believe Mr. Roosevelt would be a candidate.

IT MAY NEVER BE SOLVED

Mystery Surrounding Death of Man

Lead, S. D., Sept. 20.—The finding of the bones of a man and horse and the remnants of a saddle at a point in the extreme northwestern part of the state furnishes a mystery which the authorities may never be able to solve.

About two weeks before the finding of the bones the members of a threshing crew on the North Dakota side of the boundary line were surprised when a man rode up to them in the gloom of a rainy evening and inquired the right trail to the bad lands. He was given the information, but was denied the privilege of remaining overnight with the crew, as they were unable to provide the necessary bedding.

However, the stranger visited with them for a time and then secured lodging for the night at a farmhouse in the vicinity. From remarks dropped during the time the stranger visited the threshers they understood his name to be Schilling. The next morning the stranger disappeared, riding southward on a bay horse.

The visit of the stranger had almost been forgotten by the threshers when a cowboy appeared at their camp and told them of the finding, north of the Black Hills, of the bones of a man and horse. At the time of the visit the stranger was unarmed. The theory has been advanced that he and his horse were attacked and killed by wolves, but frontiersmen ridicule this theory.

Those who have attempted to solve the mystery believe he was trailed through the wilderness by some human prowler and assassinated for the money he possessed. Then, in order to cover up the crime, the murderer removed and destroyed the clothing of the dead man, not a vestige of which remained.

MAY BE SOME SURPRISES

Many Fights on in Legislative Districts of Minnesota.

St. Paul, Sept. 20.—Next to the congressional nominations the most hotly contested fights that will be settled today are the battles for the legislature. There is hardly a district in Minnesota that does not have some contest and in many districts the fights are very warm. Many of the prominent members in the last session are facing hard fights and there may be some surprises in the results.

Two Perish in a Well.

Kamsack, Sask., Sept. 20.—Nels Hansen, aged twenty-two, of Sisseton, S. D., and Elmer Olson, aged thirty-five, of Yorkton, Sask., lost their lives while digging a well near here. Hansen's body has been recovered, but Olson's is still at the bottom of the seventy-two-foot shaft.

The Unhumbled Valet.

The Duke of Cambridge was once about to visit Lord Stratford, who had been appointed ambassador to Turkey. At an early hour on the evening of his expected arrival the ambassador went, in slippers and dressing gown, to see if the rooms were in perfect order. He found that the duke's valet had arrived and was arranging his master's trunks and portmanteaus. Stratford gave some directions how they should be placed. The man left off working and stared at the intruder. "I tell you what it is," he said. "I know how his royal highness likes to have his things arranged better than you do. So you just be off, will you, old fellow?"

Lord Stratford left in a towering passion. Calling one of his attaches, he ordered him to go in and tell the man whom he had addressed in such language. The attaché returned with twinkling eyes.

"What did you say?" asked the ambassador.

"I said to him, my lord, that the person he had ventured to address such language to was her majesty's representative to Turkey."

"Ah, quite right. And his answer?"

"He answered, my lord, that he never said you wasn't."—"With Lord Stratford in the Crimean War."

Modern Bookmaking.

A large bindery may have a capacity of 10,000 books a day. The resources of some of these binderies are wonderful. There is an instance on record where a publishing house took an order on Monday for a cloth covered 12mo. volume of 350 pages and actually shipped 2,000 copies of the book on the following Wednesday. The type was set by machinery for the entire 350 pages before work stopped Monday night. Electrotypes were made so rapidly that on Tuesday morning several printing presses were set in motion. In the meantime covers were made in the bindery, and by Wednesday morning the binders had the book in hand. Two thousand volumes were completed that day, and the edition of 10,000 was entirely out of the way before Saturday night. In modern bookbinding machinery, as in the production of printing presses, America leads the world.—Philadelphia North American.

Train Kills Indian.

Black River Falls, Wis., Sept. 20.—William Bellew, an Indian boy, sixteen years old, who had run away from the Indian school at Tonah, was killed by a train on the Omaha road near Millston. The remains will be brought here for burial.

CARDINAL VANNUTELLI.

Papal Legate a Guest of the City of St. Paul.PAPAL LEGATE A GUEST OF ST. PAULCardinal Vannutelli Visits the Minnesota Capital.

St. Paul, Sept. 20.—Cardinal Vincenzo Vannutelli, direct representative of the head of the Roman Catholic church, got his first glimpse of an American city as he stepped into the waiting carriage at the union depot.

Although Cardinal Vannutelli has been sent as legate to many foreign countries and to Canada, it is the first time that he has ever been within the United States, and everything was done to make the reception of the distinguished ecclesiastical diplomat most interesting.

At 7:30 o'clock this morning about sixty laymen and members of the Knights of Columbus gathered at the depot to escort the visitor and his suite to the cathedral residence. Archbishop Ireland and Bishop Lawler met the cardinal as he stepped from the train, and a squad of mounted police led the escort to the cathedral.

At the cathedral residence, which was draped in the papal colors, the party rested for a time, and at 8:30 low mass was celebrated. At the close of the service, which was open to all, a few seats near the altar being reserved for the escort and visiting clergy, the cardinal and his party and Archbishop Ireland took breakfast with Bishop Lawler.

The party was then taken for a visit to the new cathedral site and from there to the residence of Archbishop Ireland. During the afternoon the party, with Archbishop Ireland and Bishop Lawler, visited the Catholic institutions and at St. Thomas college a drill by the cadets was given.

At 6 o'clock Cardinal Vannutelli will be the guest of honor at a banquet at the Saint Paul. About 300 guests are expected to attend, including Governor Eberhart and Mayor Keller.

Bishop Lawler wished it announced that the reception at the Auditorium will be open to the public.

SHOT DOWN IN HER DOORWAY

Unknown Assailant Attempts to Kill Wealthy Wisconsin Widow.

Janesville, Wis., Sept. 20.—Detectives are investigating the mysterious shooting of Mrs. John Myers, thirty-five years old, a wealthy widow, who was shot down when she stepped from her home.

Mrs. Myers' condition is pronounced critical, the bullet having severed an artery in her right arm. A search revealed no clue of the bullet's source.

Since the death of her husband, a year ago, Mrs. Myers has taken personal charge of his business interests. Her stepson, Harold, is athletic coach of the Western Reserve University of Cleveland.

The Turkish Doctor's Oath.

In Turkey they have a Hippocratic oath, though they do not call it by that name. It is given in Al-Kulliyeh, the magazine published by the Syrian Protestant college in Beirut. To each of the graduates in medicine the oath was administered by the Turkish head of the medical examining board. We cite a few of the pledges:

"That when I am called at the same time by two different patients, the one rich and the other poor, I will accept the call of the poor without taking into consideration the money offered and will do my best for his treatment, and that I will never decline to answer any call, day or night, during the reign of common diseases or of an epidemic or of contagious diseases.

"That I will not ask extra fees from the patients and will not act against my conscience by exaggerating their sickness in order to get the calling fees.

"That in case of a doubt as to the treatment of a patient I will not leave his life in danger through a failure to consult other doctors on account of my pride."

NEAR CENTER
OF THE COUNTRYVeterans Discuss Plan for a Permanent Camp.

MORE WOULD ATTEND REUNION

Old Soldiers Would Not Have to Pay So Much Railroad Fare—Considerable Grumbling Over What the Grand Army Men Term Unjust Discrimination With Reference to Railroad Rates.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 20.—Veterans attending the national encampment of the G. A. R. here discussed unofficially the proposition for a permanent camp to be established in some city geographically near the center of the country. Advocates of the plan say that this would make it possible for more to attend the encampment because of the curtailment in railroad fare.

There is considerable grumbling over what the veterans term "unjust discrimination" with reference to railroad rates. An effort is to be made to have a resolution adopted asking federal regulation of traffic rates to all subsequent encampments.

"The railroads of this country will grant a rate of 1 cent a mile for our next national encampment, or there will be no encampment," is the prediction of Edward Watson, commander of U. S. Grant post, Chicago.

The proposal to change the present schedule of an encampment every year to a meeting every two or four years met with opposition.

"We will hold an encampment every year as long as we can rally a corporal's guard," said Colonel Jack Maynard, the old member from Washington.

The commander-in-chief and his men were given a big reception on the steel pier, at which there were fully 10,000 of the boys in blue. The affair was given by the women's citizen committee. Later the Sons of Veterans gave a similar function at the Hotel Rudolph, assisted by their auxiliary.

LIVES MAY HAVE BEEN LOST

Fire Destroys a Livery Stable at Shakopee, Minn.

Shakopee, Minn., Sept. 20.—Human life may have been lost in a fire which destroyed Steelman's livery and feed stable here. Four horses were burned to death and at least a dozen men had narrow escapes. It is believed all the men in the barn escaped, although it will not be positively known that such is the case until the ruins cool sufficiently to investigate.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week the Scott county fair was held at Shakopee. The town was filled with visitors and accommodations were not to be had at the hotels. So a number of men slept in the haymow of the livery.

A farmer came to the barn and took out his team. Immediately after he left the barn was found to be on fire. It is supposed he dropped a lighted match or a cigar stump in the manger, where the hay took fire and spread through the hay chute into the mow.

The men who were sleeping in the mow had barely time to jump out the window. They do not know whether or not all who were sleeping there were able to escape.

DEITZ AGAIN VISITS WINTER

Defender of Cameron Dam Is Not Molested.

Winter, Wis., Sept. 20.—John F. Deitz, the redoubtable defender of Cameron dam, and his two sons, Clarence and Leslie, visited Winter again.

They were armed for trouble, and when it was possible to avoid it, did not turn their backs upon a knot of citizens, or even a single citizen. Apparently they were prepared to draw and fire at the least show of the authorities or anyone else to attempt to arrest them. They watched everybody closely to see that no movement of any kind was made against them.

The trio, as was the case when Deitz and Clarence visited the town soon after the shooting of Horel, were not molested, and left for their fortress on the Thornapple. Sheriff Madden was at his home at Hayward and no one in Winter, even if he had had the courage, wanted to take the initiative.

Valuable Furs Stolen.

Minneapolis, Sept. 20.—Six thousand dollars' worth of fine furs were missing when the manager and employees of R. W. Munzer & Sons, wholesale furriers, opened the door of their quarters on the second floor of the new Reld building. Subsequently $2,500 worth of the missing goods were found on the third floor. There is no clue to the robbers.

Wound Proves Fatal.

Aberdeen, S. D., Sept. 20.—D. C. Welther, a painter of Ellendale, N. D., who was accidentally shot in the knee by Basil Barnes of that place while the two were hunting ducks a few miles north of there last Thursday, died of the effects of the wound. His knee was so badly shattered that amputation of the leg was necessary. That, however, was not done in time to save his life.

LODGE HAS FAINTING SPELL

May Be Compelled to Abandon His Campaign Tour.

Boston, Sept. 20.—Following a slight collapse at the conclusion of a political speech at Norwood it is reported that United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge may have to curtail his campaigning this fall.

Senator Lodge has been in somewhat poor health for over a year and at the conclusion of an outdoor speech he had a brief fainting spell after retiring from the platform. He has fully recovered but the effect of his strenuous work on the stump thus far in the state campaign has sapped his strength.

TWO HUNDRED ILL
WITH SCARLET FEVEREpidemic of Disease at North
Winnipeg, Man.

Winnipeg, Sept. 20.—An epidemic of scarlet fever, the extent of which has not been determined, has been discovered in the foreign section of North Winnipeg. Within the past two weeks 200 cases have been treated, and three doctors living in the foreign district said they have under their care seventy-nine cases. Malignant cases have not yet grown numerous. There have not been a half dozen deaths, and the lack of accommodations to provide for isolation is a serious handicap in coping with the spread of the disease.

Officials have been withholding the details of the epidemic, it is said, and a grave condition has existed for about three weeks. One doctor, who has fifty patients in the foreign district suffering from scarlet fever, said the condition was most acute.

In many cases several children in a family are ill, and the doctors say the disease in these instances is extremely liable to invoke serious complications of peritonitis and pneumonia. One physician said the disease has spread rapidly since the schools opened and the Aberdeen school has been closed.

PAPUANS WEARING TAILS.

Have Holes in Ground to Put Them in While Sitting.

Judge J. H. P. Murray, the British lieutenant governor of Papua, says that he has never heard the natives speak of pygmies—a race of whom is reported to have been discovered there—but stories of men with tails were common among them.

Judge Murray once chatted with a Papuan who alleged that he had actually been in a village inhabited by men with tails. Their houses had holes in the ground for the reception of their tails when they sat down.

These stories, says Judge Murray, are rather curious in view of the fact that there are no monkeys in the great equatorial island.

New Brunswick Sells Cattle.

One way in which the New Brunswick government has encouraged farming progress lies in the importing of cattle and horses of approved breeds and selling them to farmers at cost price, in some instances time being given on part of the purchase price.

TRAGEDY ON A HOMESTEAD

Son Kills His Father in a Drunken Fight.

Gull Lake, Sask., Sept. 20.—In a fit of drunken frenzy Lewis McBride, a homesteader living ten miles from this city, shot his father. The old man died a few hours later.

The father and son had been in town and both had imbibed freely during the day. After they arrived at their lonely shack on their claim a quarrel was started, during which the son seized a shotgun, pointed it at his father, and emptied the charge into the older man's abdomen. The shock following the shooting sobered the son, who hastened to this city to secure medical assistance. He was arrested by Constable Fisher of the Royal Northwest mounted police and is held here. A physician hastened to the cabin where the wounded man lay, but in spite of his efforts he died shortly after his arrival.

THE WAY OF THE SWISS.

Foreigners Regarded as Egyptians and Treated Accordingly.

A foreign resident in Switzerland was fined 10 francs because his little girl had plucked three buttercups growing on a piece of land on which she and some half dozen Swiss children had for years been accustomed to play. The land had recently changed hands, and its new owner had put up a notice forbidding the plucking of flowers. A passing gendarme had found the children flagrante delicto and had forthwith instituted proceedings against the little foreigner, while letting the little natives go scot free. The child's father appealed against the sentence and by dint of hard fighting, which entailed, of course, expense, forced the higher court to reduce the fine from 10 francs to 3—i. e., 1 franc for each buttercup.

When I tried to learn the whys and wherefores of this case I was told by a Swiss that one-half of every fine levied goes to the gendarme who reports the offense for which it is levied, and also that Swiss gendarmes cannot fairly be expected to be quite so alert in taking proceedings against their own country people as against foreigners.

Further, I was told by an American that in Switzerland all foreigners rank as Egyptians and that the one Scriptural injunction that is faithfully obeyed there is that which ordains that Egyptians shall be spoiled.—From "The Latter Day Swiss" in Cornhill Magazine.

Inquired Into by the Commerce Commission.

BELOW THE MARKET VALUE

Controller of the Illinois Central Railroad Says Shares Were Disposed of to Stockholders—Declares This Was Done So That No Big Block of Stock Would Be Put on the Market and Reduce the Price.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—Alleged stock inflation and manipulation, designed to turn over to stockholders large sums of money without putting in the company's record any evidence of more than fair dividends, was the subject delved into here by the interstate commerce commission.

The stock manipulation feature of the inquiry, which aims to bring out what grounds the railroads have for asking to increase rates, was suggested by Commissioner Judson C. Clements, and was immediately taken up by the commission's attorney, Frank Lyon, and Attorney John H. Atwood of Kansas City, who appeared for the general shippers' committee which is fighting the increase. Controller M. P. Blauvelt of the Illinois Central railroad was the witness from whom the startling disclosures which followed were obtained.

Commissioner Clements called the witness' attention to figures he had furnished on direct examination by the railroads counsel, W. H. Horton. The commissioner said:

"You say, Mr. Blauvelt, that in 1891 your capital stock was $40,000,000 on 2,875 miles of road, and in 1910, on only about 1,700 miles more, it was $109,000,000. Also, that in 1891, the bonded indebtedness was only $62,000,000, while in 1910 it had reached $176,000,000. Why is this?"

"Well," was the answer, "what would appear to be the excess went to improvements of the roadway, and to equipment and purchase of other roads."

"And how was the stock raised for these purposes sold?" continued the commissioner. "Was it on the open market?"

"Part of it was. But most of it was sold to the stockholders at par."

"Was there ever declared a stock dividend?"

"No, I'm sure there was not. That would amount to the same as any other dividend, you see. The Illinois Central stock sales represented real values in dollars and cents."

Attorney Lyon Takes a Hand.

Here Attorney Frank Lyon for the commission took a hand in the cross-examination, seeking to have the witness differentiate giving stockholders a stock dividend or giving them stock worth more than par at parity. The controller insisted there was a vast difference, even if the result was the same in cash to the stockholders, which he admitted.

This part of the testimony opened a new disposition of a corporation's stock and Commissioner Lane, after asking if it was to make the stock value approach the cash value and being informed it was not, allowed the attorney to delve into the par stock deals.

"If your stock sold at 150 in open market," asked the attorney, "and you gave it to your stockholders at 100 what became of the extra 50 per cent of its value?"

"Why, it went to the stockholders," was the answer.

"Then the upshot of it was your company added to its capital stock by letting stock go at par, when it needed money, when it could have sold less stock on the open market, satisfied its need and kept the capital stock down, giving less capital to figure dividends upon; isn't that so?" was the next query.

Controller Blauvelt was unwilling such an impression should prevail, he said, and he explained by saying:

"Suppose we dumped $15,000,000 in stock on the market at once; it would send its value way below par. I consider it a good business policy to sell where we were sure it would bring par and keep control of the road where it was."

Attorney John H. Atwood of Kansas City, representing the general shippers' committee, was anxious to know, he said, how much of the company's $285,000,000 in stocks and bonds has thus been sold at par since 1900.

"Can you give us the figure?" he asked.

The reply caused other attorneys for the shippers to hastily examine the records that had been submitted by the company. Mr. Blauvelt answered:

"I find the sum was $49,000,000, par value."

"That, sold in small dabs on the market, or if it all could have been sold at market prices, would have amounted to about a third to a half or more, in addition to that figure, wouldn't it?"

"I don't know," replied the witness.

"I think I can help you," answered the attorney. He read from a stock and bond company pamphlet which quoted the high and low market prices in the period covered as between 122 and 174, with an average of about 150.

Crosby and wife a plat of the "Park Division to the Town of Crosby," in the north half of the southwest quarter of the northwest quarter and part of the south half of the southwest quarter of section 12-46-29. Cards have been received announcing the marriage of Robert McFerron and Miss Edith Hoar at Minneapolis, Sept. 15th. The bride will be remembered as a former Brainerd girl and who visited in this city for a couple of weeks during the early part of August. Store your household good with D. M. Clark & Co. 31tf The Salvation Army will hold a special meeting at their hall, 219 South Fifth street, at eight o'clock this evening. Ensign Foster, Capt. Graves and Capt. Goblenz will be in charge. There will be good music and singing. All are invited to attend. The open air meeting is set for 7:30 P. M. at the corner of Front and Sixth streets. Rev. Charles Fox Davis went to Fergus Falls this afternoon to attend the four days conference of the Methodist Episcopal church. It is this conference which assigns pastors to the ministers. Rev. Davis is so well liked and has made such a success in his work in Brainerd that there is no doubt whatever about his being returned to Brainerd. Miss Sara Ruth Bates, an educationist, of Minneapolis, will give an interesting program at the Baptist church on Wednesday evening, Sept. 21st. The I. O. O. F. and Rebekah lodges were delightfully entertained last evening at their hall in honor of the 59th anniversary of the Rebekah Degree. Their hall was beautifully decorated with autumn leaves, flowers flags and potted plants. A varied program was well rendered and refreshments served. Many new applications for membership were taken in.

Football Saturday
Football season opens Saturday, Sept. 24th, when the High school and the Independents clash on the McKay grounds. The high school although handicapped by the loss of three or four valuable men, has a fine bunch of new material and the men are willing and earnest workers. The boys are fortunate in securing the services of Walter Wieland for coach, who, together with Captain Alderman have been putting the boys through a stiff, every-night drill. They will probably line up as follows: Brady, centre; Day and Darling, guards; Lund and Bergren, tackles; Alderman and Smith, ends; This is not the official line-up, as the contest for positions is hot and heavy and some of these men are going to have a fight to hold their places. The Independents are a fast, heavy bunch and are out to get the high school's scalp. They will probably line up as follows: Mahood, centre; Vogel and A. Swanson, guards; E. Swanson and Cain, tackles; Ned Brooks, capt., and Lind, ends; H. Shello, quarter; Roland Barron and Sig Shello, halves; and Jerry Barron, full. The game will be called at 3:30 sharp and arrangements will be made to accommodate a big crowd. The fair rooters, the loyal supporters of the blue and white, will be out in force to cheer their favorites, while the Brainerd band will root for the Independents. Tickets are now out, the proceeds to go to the high school team. Be there and see a good game.

Salvation Army Meeting
A large crowd was present at the open air meeting of the Salvation Army last night and listened to the address of Col. S. Marshall, of Minneapolis. A large audience assembled later at the army hall on south Fifth street and listened to an inspiring address by Col. Marshall. In the course of his remarks he complimented the local officers on their activity and the local workers on the energy and enthusiasm shown. Special music was rendered by Norman Marshall, son of Col. Marshall, Capt. Corliss and Lieutenant Schut. Col. Marshall returned to Minneapolis this noon, which city is his headquarters for this province, of which he has been in charge for about a year and which he reports to be in a most flourishing condition.

Cash Your Rent Receipts

We Lend You the Money at Simple Interest

Money invested in house rent receipts is a poor investment and one that you will never derive any future benefits from. Anybody can pay rent but it takes energy, economy and thrift to own a home. We will lend you the money to buy; build, improve homes or lift mortgages anywhere in the Union. For each $1000 borrowed you pay us $7.50 per month together with 5 per cent interest on yearly balances; giving you 10 1/2 years in which to repay loan, with the privilege of taking up all notes or as many as you wish at any time, and by so doing you would get a discount of the 5 per cent interest on all notes taken up before maturity. We allow six months' grace in case of adverse circumstances. Now, why do you pay rent when our plan will enable you to own a home with the money you spend for rent? On receipt of this coupon, properly filled out, we will mail you full particulars in regard to our method of loaning money, or, better still, come to our office and let us explain to you our liberal proposition in detail.

A Tip on Oats.

According to the Saturday Evening Post, a man who had a country place on Long Island came to New York one morning to do a little speculating. He was a great believer in tips.

On the ferryboat it came to him that he had had somehow a tip on oats. He couldn't remember just what it was, but somebody had told him to buy oats. So when he reached his broker's office he looked into oats a bit and bought some. Oats were active. He pyramided skillfully and by the close of the market was $7,000 ahead.

Of course such luck as that had to be celebrated, and it was. As the celebration went on the oats buyer told the story several times and each time took on importance in the recital as an oats buyer until he finally became the oats king. He reached his railroad station somewhat late and found the stableman waiting for him with a trap.

"By the way," said the stableman, "did you remember to order that five bushels of oats I asked you to buy this morning?"

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"The Blue Mouse" Tomorrow Night
When "The Blue Mouse" was first produced in New York, having been translated from the German by Clyde Fitch, it was little thought before-hand that it would prove a sensation. Much was hoped for it, but the reception of the piece was even greater than either the author or the producer dreamed of. As an example of this, the leading magazines bestowed the most flattering praise upon it. The farce, with a great cast of thirty, will be presented at the Brainerd opera house by the Shuberts next Wednesday evening, Sept. 21.

Ainslee's said, "Although it is a German farce, it has the Gallic flavor, even if Mr. Fitch has done all that he could do to purify it. Still a plot that revolves around the efforts of a middle-aged husband to carry on a flirtation with a famous Salome dancer could scarcely develop into anything resembling a Sunday school lesson."

The Theatre Magazine spoke as follows: "The Blue Mouse" is the title of a farcical frivolity so full of gaudy laughter that it is almost all you need to know about it."

"The Blue Mouse" is the nickname of a vaudeville Salome dancer, Paul-ette Divine, who represents one more variant of that singularly unlikable stage type, the Chorus Lady. Miss Harrison makes her pretty and racy enough, in a cerulean sheath gown, to account for anything that happens; and it is not the actress' fault if Mr. Fitch, or somebody, puts in her kiss-inviting mouth such an incongruous line of talk as "he has went," and "I can't help it; it's my temperament."

COUNTY OPTION'S CLAIMS

There is vigorous and persistent effort on the part of those opposed to county option to prejudice the public mind against it by representing that it is not a square proposition but intended to deceive that its real purpose is state prohibition; while by no possibility could county option effect state prohibition unless the people who do the voting should want prohibition. The truth is that county option demands recognition for two or three fundamental reasons; no one of which is related to state-wide prohibition. First, the county is the unit for purposes of taxation, as it is also the unit of county expense for maintenance of jails and courts. If a man is taxed for the expenses of maintaining county and district courts, of jails and poor farms, he should also have a recognized right in regulating or eliminating any trade that makes these things necessary. But one would not think so to hear the friend of the saloons tell his tale of woe. One would think on the contrary that the county optionist is a conspirator against personal liberty, a tyrant and oppressor. The real case is that county option aims only at restoring to the voters of the county the right conferred by the constitution; that one shall have a voice in expenditures for which one is taxed, and which was taken from him by the liquor interests in establishing our present system of local option; the reason being plainly evident; that it is easier to control votes in towns than in counties, the towns being subject to the bribery of the license, and the "trade" draft argument—which is mostly insult to the farmer. One thing however, shows plainly in this fight for county option and that is that the friends and defenders of the saloon are afraid to let the people of the county get a chance to vote on it. —Cannon Falls Beacon.

An Open Air Hotel.

A man from the west was looking for a friend in New York who had gone wrong. He heard his friend had been sleeping on the benches in Bryant park and went over there to look for him. There were a good many unfortunate on the benches, but the particular friend the westerner wanted to find was not there. However, the westerner did find another man from his own town whom he knew and who knew the man for whom he was searching.

"Where's Jones?" asked the westerner, prodding the man he knew.
"Aw," replied the hobo sleepily, "he ain't come in yet."—New York Sun.

LIKE FATHER LIKE SON UNTRUE SO FAR AS CALIFORNIA SEES

Recent Republican Primary Nominates Filius Hiram W. Johnson For Governor and Defeats Pater Grove L. For Legislature.

By J. A. EDGERTON.

THE insurgent movement has divided at least one family. In California Grove L. Johnson, who has been in congress and the legislature for eighteen or twenty years, is known as a standpatter of standpatters, yet this year he was defeated in the Republican primaries for renomination to the legislature. In the same election Hiram W. Johnson, his son, running as an insurgent, carried the Republican primaries for governor by a plurality so large the election boards are hardly through counting it yet.

Insurgency has been known to divide fathers-in-law and sons-in-law, but this is the first conspicuous instance in which it has estranged father and son. In Massachusetts not one would accuse Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of insurgency. They would as soon charge political heresy against Eugene Hale or Nelson W. Aldrich. Yet the husband of Lodge's daughter, the Hon. Gussie Gardner, is one of the representatives that have been making life uneasy for Uncle Joe.

Anent the Hon. Nicholas Longworth, another representative who married the daughter of a great man, Theodore Roosevelt once remarked to Gardner, "Your father-in-law and my son-in-law do not approve of our radicalism."

Pinchot Claims Victory.

Roosevelt refused to mix in Johnson's fight for governor of California, but sent Gifford Pinchot, who joyously made insurgent speeches all over the state and seemingly regards the victory as a personal triumph. Well, it was a big enough victory to be divided up and still leave "glory enough for all." So if Pinchot wants a slice of it Johnson probably has no objections.

Rudolph Spreckels, Francis J. Heney and the Lincoln-Roosevelt league also claim some small share of the credit, since they first selected Johnson for the graft prosecutions and afterward made him the candidate. Pretty much everybody is happy over the result, so far as I can judge, except Grove L. Johnson, the Southern Pacific railroad and some of the people who wanted Heney removed from office because he ate with his knife.

It must be admitted that "sword swallowing" is a heinous offense, but the penalty should fit the crime. Firing a man out of a good paying office is going too far. That should be classed under the head of cruel and unusual punishment. The worst that can be hoped for a man who eats with his knife is that he should cut his mouth or swallow the knife by mistake. As a matter of fact, those San Francisco people did not care a hang whether Heney ate with his knife or with his fingers. What they really objected to was that he prosecuted the grafters. And right there is where Hiram Johnson came into the game.

Johnson an Orator.

Johnson had been practicing law in San Francisco and had arrived at the point where he was called a "leading lawyer." He was effective before a jury, especially in the line of pathos. When it came to getting the jury all worked up Hiram Johnson was there with the oratory. As for politics, he voted any way he pleased. His enemies said he registered at the primaries as a Republican, but usually voted the Democratic ticket. Anyway, he was independent and did not try to conceal it. Likewise he was against his father in politics and did not try to conceal that either. Then he was made deputy district attorney to help in the prosecution of Schmitz and Ruef, and it was the reputation there made that suggested him as the proper insurgent leader.

Again his foes say—what will foes not say in politics?—that he defended Dazell Brown, the bank wrecker, at about the same time that he was prosecuting graft. They also aver that he never really broke with his father at all. It might be difficult to convince Grove L. Johnson of that.

Where he is known the elder Johnson is called "foxy old Grove." In the legislature he has generally been regarded as a friend of the Southern Pacific. When he was in congress—he served but one term—his most conspicuous act was an attack on W. R. Hearst. The editor came back with a two or three page broadside in which he charged that Grove L. had once been indicted for forgery in New York state. That would have felled the average statesman, but it never fazed Johnson.

Beaten For Renomination.

He arose to a question of personal privilege, admitted the charge, said he had never tried to conceal it, but had told his constituents all about the episode and actually compelled applause by recounting how he had lived down his early indiscretion. Not only so, but he went back to Sacramento and made a fight for a renomination. His son, Hiram, the identical Hiram now running for governor, was his campaign manager. But they were beaten. It is said that the son's opposition to the Southern Pacific began from that very day. However that may be, he became corporation counsel for the town, and his father went back to the legislature.

The mayor of Sacramento at that time was George Clark. At the end of his first term the machine turned down Clark, and he ran independently and was elected. Hiram Johnson had not a little to do with his victory. Then he induced Clark to become an independent candidate in the state and made a fight for him along lines similar to those on which he himself conducted his fight for governor in the recent campaign. Clark was disastrously defeated, however, and Hiram Johnson son resigned his job and went to San Francisco.

There was at this time another brother, Albert. The two went into the practice of law together, but Albert died not long after the firm was organized. He was known as a brilliant man and was even more radical in his political opinions and hence more at variance with their father than Hiram himself.

When Father Meets Son.

One of the peculiar features of the present situation is that, while Grove L. Johnson failed to get the Republican nomination for the legislature, he did get the Prohibition nomination, receiving one vote. As there were no Prohibition candidates this entitles him to the nomination under the law. He says he will take it and make the fight. He also thought he had received twenty-eight votes in the Democratic column, thus tying his opponent. The statutory provision is that in the case of a tie the two candidates shall draw lots, and "foxy old Grove" was on hand for the drawing, but a recount shattered the dream. If he should chance to be elected as a Prohibitionist and his son becomes governor there would probably be an interesting aftermath to this political family feud.

For example, we can imagine Governor Johnson recommending a law to clip the wings of the Southern Pacific and Legislator Johnson fighting it tooth and nail. To prevent such a contingency we can be sure that the Hiram Johnson forces will leave no stone unturned to keep "foxy old Grove" out of the legislature. It looks like another case of "too much Johnson," so one of the Johnsons has to be eliminated, and the old man seems to be the goat. The prodigal son is reversed. Here it is the prodigal dad that is feeding on hushes, but he shows no signs of returning to his son's house, and there are no indications that he would be welcomed with a real barbecue if he did return.

California Surprises Many.

The insurgent sweep in California was an eye opener to the country, as was that in Kansas and elsewhere. While the revolt on the coast did not result from the same causes as that farther east, it exhibited the same general trend. It carried through not only the Lincoln-Roosevelt league state ticket, but two candidates for congress.

In the popular or advisory vote for United States senator the result was uncomfortably close between John D. Works, the insurgent candidate, and A. G. Spaulding, the former baseball pitcher and manufacturer of athletic goods. The result on senatorship was complicated by the fact that the man who carries the largest number of legislative districts and not the one receiving the largest total vote is the one supposed to be chosen.

Spaulding lives at Point Loma and is a member of Katherine Tingley's theosophical colony. He is the man who took the all America ball teams around the world. One of his pitchers in that tour was John K. Tener, now Republican candidate for governor of Pennsylvania. The insurgents claim that they will have a working majority in the legislature, and this may affect the senatorial situation.

Latest advices are that both Works and Spaulding claim the primary endorsement, Works having received the largest vote in the state, but Spaulding carrying a majority of the legislative districts.

The fight on governor is likewise complicated by the doubt as to how the regulars will vote in the November election. They assert that Hiram Johnson affronted President Taft, and some of them may vote against him on this score. The Democratic candidate is Theodore A. Bell, who was temporary chairman of the national convention at Denver.

At the last gubernatorial election in 1906 Bell was also the candidate and came within 8,259 votes of beating Gillett. Bell is a lawyer at Napa and was for one term a member of congress. This year he was the unanimous nominee for governor in the Democratic primaries. Will enough of the regular Republicans swing to Bell to give him the election? That is now the chief question in California politics.

Fight on Southern Pacific.

While Johnson will lose conservative Republicans, it is also probable that he will gain progressive Democrats. No intelligent forecast can be made of the result, however, without considering the chief factor in California politics. That factor is the Southern Pacific railroad. For years the Southern Pacific has ruled California, Johnson and his followers proclaim that they are going to drive it out of state politics, just as Theodore Roosevelt promises to drive all special interests out of national politics. This will necessarily force a realignment of parties.

How many votes can the Southern Pacific swing in a straight-out fight if it attempts to oppose Johnson in the coming election? Should it take an open stand will it not drive more to him than it draws from him? These are questions that only election day can answer. Yet on them depend the fate of the canvass and to a considerable degree the trend of future politics in California. If Johnson wins and carries out his pledge to end Southern Pacific domination it will mean a practical revolution of politics in the state.

California has been Republican for many years, Taft having carried it by 86,906 out of a total vote of less than 400,000 and Roosevelt having had a plurality of 115,822 out of a total vote of less than 350,000. The claim of Johnson's friends is that the Roosevelt following is with them in this fight.

Hiram W. Johnson is not unlike Roosevelt, although a younger man. He is almost as vigorous a campaigner, having covered 10,000 miles in the recent primary struggle. He likewise cleaned up Sacramento, as Roosevelt in years before had cleaned up New York city. The California insurgent leader is not afraid to speak out. His prosecution of graft and bossism in San Francisco and his exhortation of President Taft showed that. He boldly likens the present struggle in America to the conflict against privilege in the French revolution.

As to the other Johnson, it may be that there is paternal pride lurking away back in the corners of his heart over the triumphs of his son, but if so he makes no sign. MORMONS TALK EMIGRATION.

May Leave Utah For Mexico to Practice Polygamy.

Hamilton Smith, a priest of the Mormon church, who participated in the close of a sale of 50,000 acres of land for the Mormons in the state of Coahuila, Mexico, is authority for the statement that President Diaz has assured the church that polygamy and all other practices of the church will be permitted without interference in Mexico.

Dr. Smith also states that his people will abandon Utah in the not far distant future and settle in Mexico, where they will not be prosecuted for their religion and its practices. He declares the United States has gone out of its way in passing unreasonable and unjust laws to deprive the Mormons of their rights.

The Mormons already own 65,000 acres of land and have a well established colony in Mexico adjoining the 50,000 acres just acquired and hold options on thousands of acres which extend to the Rio Grande on the east.

Wise Men of Gotham.

A "wise man of Gotham" is a fool, but the phrase arose through the real wisdom of the people that lived in the English town of Gotham. The story goes that King John of England once visited the town with the intention of seeing a castle that he thought of taking for himself. But the Gothamites did not care for the nearness of royalty and the expense they would be put to if the king should have a house there, and so they cooked up a scheme to drive him away. When the king arrived with his company of followers and rode through the town he saw all the inhabitants of Gotham going through the most foolish of tasks, each person with a silly smile on his face. The king was disgusted with them. He would not live among crazy people, and so he rode on through the town and did not stop for the castle. Then the wise men of Gotham, still smiling, but not in a silly fashion, told one another that there were more fools that passed through Gotham than remain in it.

The most famous opal in history was that which was worn in a ring by the Roman senator Nonius in the day of the triumvirate. Its size equaled that of a medium sized hazelnut, yet its beauty and brilliancy rendered it a marvel among the dilettanti of Rome, especially when it was known that the goldsmiths and money changers had set its value at $1,000,000. Mark Antony made overtures to Nonius for its purchase, intending, it is thought, to present it to Cleopatra, but the senator refused to part with it and for fear that it would be taken from him by sheer force sought safety in flight. Here history loses all trace of its transference from Nonius to any of his family.

A Tip on Oats.

According to the Saturday Evening Post, a man who had a country place on Long Island came to New York one morning to do a little speculating. He was a great believer in tips.

On the ferryboat it came to him that he had had somehow a tip on oats. He couldn't remember just what it was, but somebody had told him to buy oats. So when he reached his broker's office he looked into oats a bit and bought some. Oats were active. He pyramided skillfully and by the close of the market was $7,000 ahead.

Of course such luck as that had to be celebrated, and it was. As the celebration went on the oats buyer told the story several times and each time took on importance in the recital as an oats buyer until he finally became the oats king. He reached his railroad station somewhat late and found the stableman waiting for him with a trap.

"By the way," said the stableman, "did you remember to order that five bushels of oats I asked you to buy this morning?"

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"The Blue Mouse" Tomorrow Night

When "The Blue Mouse" was first produced in New York, having been translated from the German by Clyde Fitch, it was little thought before-hand that it would prove a sensation. Much was hoped for it, but the reception of the piece was even greater than either the author or the producer dreamed of. As an example of this, the leading magazines bestowed the most flattering praise upon it. The farce, with a great cast of thirty, will be presented at the Brainerd opera house by the Shuberts next Wednesday evening, Sept. 21.

Ainslee's said, "Although it is a German farce, it has the Gallic flavor, even if Mr. Fitch has done all that he could do to purify it. Still a plot that revolves around the efforts of a middle-aged husband to carry on a flirtation with a famous Salome dancer could scarcely develop into anything resembling a Sunday school lesson."

The Theatre Magazine spoke as follows: "The Blue Mouse" is the title of a farcical frivolity so full of painless laughter that it is almost all you need to know about it."

"The Blue Mouse" is the nickname of a vaudeville Salome dancer, Paullette Divine, who represents one more variant of that singularly unlikely stage type, the Chorus Lady. Miss Harrison makes her pretty and racy enough, in a cerulean sheath gown, to account for anything that happens; and it is not the actress' fault if Mr. Fitch, or somebody, puts in her kiss-inviting mouth such an incongruous line of talk as "he has went," and "I can't help it; it's my temperament."

COUNTY OPTION'S CLAIMS

There is vigorous and persistent effort on the part of those opposed to county option to prejudice the public mind against it by representing that it is not a square proposition but intended to deceive that its real purpose is state prohibition; while by no possibility could county option effect state prohibition unless the people who do the voting should want prohibition. The truth is that county option demands recognition for two or three fundamental reasons; no one of which is related to state-wide prohibition. First, the county is the unit for purposes of taxation, as it is also the unit of county expense for maintenance of jails and courts. If a man is taxed for the expenses of maintaining county and district courts, of jails and poor farms, he should also have a recognized right in regulating or eliminating any trade that makes these things necessary. But one would not think so to hear the friend of the saloons tell his tale of woe. One would think on the contrary that the county optionist is a conspirator against personal liberty, a tyrant and oppressor. The real case is that county option aims only at restoring to the voters of the county the right conferred by the constitution; that one shall have a voice in expenditures for which one is taxed, and which was taken from him by the liquor interests in establishing our present system of local option; the reason being plainly evident; that it is easier to control votes in towns than in counties, the towns being subject to the bribery of the license, and the "trade" draft argument—which is mostly insult to the farmer. One thing however, shows plainly in this fight for county option and that is that the friends and defenders of the saloon are afraid to let the people of the county get a chance to vote on it. —Cannon Falls Beacon.

However, the westerner did find another man from his own town whom he knew and who knew the man for whom he was searching.

LIKE FATHER LIKE SON UNTRUE SO FAR AS CALIFORNIA SEES

Recent Republican Primary Nominate Filius Hiram W. Johnson For Governor and Defeats Pater Grove L. For Legislature.

By J. A. EDGERTON.

THE insurgent movement has divided at least one family. In California Grove L. Johnson, who has been in congress and the legislature for eighteen or twenty years, is known as a standpat of standpatters, yet this year he was defeated in the Republican primaries for renomination to the legislature. In the same election Hiram W. Johnson, his son, running as an insurgent, carried the Republican primaries for governor by a plurality so large the election boards are hardly through counting it yet.

Insurgency has been known to divide fathers-in-law and sons-in-law, but this is the first conspicuous instance in which it has estranged father and son. In Massachusetts no one would accuse Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of insurgency. They would as soon accuse Senator Nelson W. Aldrich. Yet the husband of Lodge's daughter, the Hon. Gussie Gardner, is one of the representatives that have been making life uneasy for Uncle Joe.

Anent the Hon. Nicholas Longworth, another representative who married the daughter of a great man, Theodore Roosevelt once remarked to Gardner, "Your father-in-law and my son-in-law do not approve of our radicalism."

Pinchot Claims Victory.

Roosevelt refused to mix in Johnson's fight for governor of California, but sent Gifford Pinchot, who joyously made insurgent speeches all over the state and seemingly regards the victory as a personal triumph. Well, it was a big enough victory to be divided up and still leave "glory enough for all." So if Pinchot wants a slice of it Johnson probably has no objections.

Rudolph Spreckels, Francis J. Heney and the Lincoln-Roosevelt league also claim some small share of the credit, since they first selected Johnson for the first prosecutions and afterward made him the candidate. Pretty much everybody is happy over the result, so far as I can judge, except Grove L. Johnson, the Southern Pacific railroad and some of the people who wanted Heney removed from office because he ate with his knife.

It must be admitted that "sword swallowing" is a heinous offense, but the penalty should fit the crime. Firing a man out of a good paying office is going too far. That should be classed under the head of cruel and unusual punishment. The worst that can be hoped for a man who eats with his knife is that he should cut his mouth or swallow the knife by mistake. As a matter of fact, those San Francisco people did not care a hang whether Heney ate with his knife or with his fingers. What they really objected to was that he prosecuted the grafters. And right there is where Hiram Johnson came into the game.

Johnson an Orator.

Johnson had been practicing law in San Francisco and had arrived at the point where he was called a "leading lawyer." He was effective before a jury, especially in the line of pathos. When it came to getting the jury all worked up Hiram Johnson was there with the oratory. As for politics, he voted any way he pleased. His enemies said he registered at the primaries as a Republican, but usually voted the Democratic ticket. Anyway, he was independent and did not try to conceal it. Likewise he was against his father in politics and did not try to conceal that either. Then he was made deputy district attorney to help in the prosecution of Schmitz and Ruef, and it was the reputation there made that suggested him as the proper insurgent leader.

Again his foes say—that what he does not say in politics?—that he defended Dalzell Brown, the bank wrecker, at about the same time that he was prosecuting graft. They also aver that he never really broke with his father at all. It might be difficult to convince Grove L. Johnson of that.

Where he is known the elder Johnson is called "foxy old Grove." In the legislature he has generally been regarded as a friend of the Southern Pacific. When he was in congress—he served but one term—his most conspicuous act was an attack on W. R. Hearst. The editor came back with a two or three page broadside in which he charged that Grove L. had once been indicted for forgery in New York state. That would have floored the average statesman, but it never fazed Johnson.

Beaten For Renomination.

He arose to a question of personal privilege, admitted the charge, said he had never tried to conceal it, but had told his constituents all about the episode and actually compelled applause by recounting how he had lived down his early indiscretion. Not only so, but he went back to Sacramento and made a fight for a renomination. His son, Hiram, the identical Hiram now running for governor, was his campaign manager. But they were beaten. It is said that the son's opposition to the Southern Pacific began from that very day. However that may be, he became corporation counsel for the town, and his father went back to the legislature.

The mayor of Sacramento at that time was George Clark. At the end of his first term the machine turned down Clark, and he ran independently and was elected. Hiram Johnson had not a little to do with his victory. Then he induced Clark to become an independent candidate in the state and made a fight for him along lines similar to those on which he himself conducted his fight for governor in the recent campaign. Clark was disastrously defeated, however, and Hiram Johnson resigned his job and went to San Francisco.

There was at this time another brother, Albert. The two went into the practice of law together, but Albert died not long after the firm was organized. He was known as a brilliant man and was even more radical in his political opinions and hence more at variance with their father than Hiram himself.

When Father Meets Son.

One of the peculiar features of the present situation is that, while Grove L. Johnson failed to get the Republican nomination for the legislature, he did get the Prohibition nomination, receiving one vote. As there were no Prohibition candidates this entitles him to the nomination under the law. He says he will take it and make the fight. He also thought he had received twenty-eight votes in the Democratic column, thus tying his opponent. The statutory provision is that in the case of a tie the two candidates shall draw lots, and "foxy old Grove" was on hand for the drawing, but a recount shattered the dream. If he should chance to be elected as a Prohibitionist and his son becomes governor there would probably be an interesting aftermath to this political family feud.

For example, we can imagine Governor Johnson recommending a law to clip the wings of the Southern Pacific and Legislator Johnson fighting it tooth and nail. To prevent such a contingency we can be sure that the Hiram Johnson forces will leave no stone unturned to keep "foxy old Grove" out of the legislature. It looks like another case of "too much Johnson," so one of the Johnsons has to be eliminated, and the old man seems to be the goat. The prodigal son is reversed. Here it is the prodigal dad that is feeding on husks, but he shows no signs of returning to his son's house, and there are no indications that he would be welcomed with a real barbecue if he did return.

California Surprises Many.

The insurgent sweep in California was an eye opener to the country, as was that in Kansas and elsewhere. While the revolt on the coast did not result from the same causes as that farther east, it exhibited the same general trend. It carried through not only the Lincoln-Roosevelt league state ticket, but two candidates for congress.

In the popular or advisory vote for United States senator the result was uncomfortably close between John D. Works, the insurgent candidate, and A. G. Spaulding, the former baseball pitcher and manufacturer of athletic goods. The result on senatorship was complicated by the fact that the man who carries the largest number of legislative districts and not the one receiving the largest total vote is the one supposed to be chosen. Spaulding lives at Point Loma and is a member of Katherine Tingley's theosophical colony. He is the man who took the all America ball teams around the world. One of his pitchers in that tour was John K. Tener, now Republican candidate for governor of Pennsylvania. The insurgents claim that they will have a working majority in the legislature, and this may affect the senatorial situation.

Latest advices are that both Works and Spaulding claim the primary endorsement, Works having received the largest vote in the state, but Spaulding carrying a majority of the legislative districts. The fight on governor is likewise complicated by the doubt as to how the regulars will vote in the November election. They assert that Hiram Johnson affronted President Taft, and some of them may vote against him on this score. The Democratic candidate is Theodore A. Bell, who was temporary chairman of the national convention at Denver.

At the last gubernatorial election in 1906 Bell was also the candidate and came within 8,200 votes of beating Gillett. Bell is a lawyer at Napa and was for one term a member of congress. This year he was the unanimous nominee for governor in the Democratic primaries. Will enough of the regular Republicans swing to Bell to give him the election? That is now the chief question in California politics.

Fight on Southern Pacific.

While Johnson will lose conservative Republicans, it is also probable that he will gain progressive Democrats. No intelligent forecast can be made of the result, however, without considering the chief factor in California politics. That factor is the Southern Pacific railroad. For years the Southern Pacific has ruled California. Johnson and his followers proclaim that they are going to drive it out of state politics, just as Theodore Roosevelt promises to drive all special interests out of national politics. This will necessarily force a realignment of parties.

How many votes can the Southern Pacific swing in a straight-out fight if it attempts to oppose Johnson in the coming election? Should it take an open stand will it not drive more to him than it draws from him? These are questions that only election day can answer. Yet on them depend the fate of the canvass and to a considerable degree the trend of future politics in California. If Johnson wins and carries out his pledge to end Southern Pacific domination it will mean a practical revolution of politics in the state.

California has been Republican for many years, Taft having carried it by 86,900 out of a total vote of less than 400,000 and Roosevelt having had a plurality of 115,822 out of a total vote of less than 350,000. The claim of Johnson's friends is that the Roosevelt following is with them in this fight.

Hiram W. Johnson is not unlike Roosevelt, although a younger man. He is almost as vigorous a campaigner, having covered 10,000 miles in the recent primary struggle. He likewise cleaned up Sacramento, as Roosevelt in years before had cleaned up New York city. The California insurgent leader is not afraid to speak out. His prosecution of graft and bossism in San Francisco and his exhortation of President Taft showed that. He boldly likens the present struggle in America to the conflict against privilege in the French revolution.

As to the other Johnson, it may be that there is paternal pride lurking away back in the corners of his heart over the triumphs of his son, but if so he makes no sign. Seemingly he is unrepentant and determined to be a prodigal dad to the end. Political husks are not a satisfying or a filling diet, and even these are growing scarce.
